HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Lafayette, a Son of Hon. Lafayette Lane, Run Over by a Train at Roseburg.

Passengers on this morning's Shasta Express, reported the particulars of a horrible accident that occurred at Roseburg as the train pulled out of that town last night.

The train is helped over Rice's hill, from Roseburg, by an extra engine, and Lafayette Lane, Jr., has been employed as fireman on this engine. Last night, an engineer named Jap Waite, and Miss Lucy Burnett, daughter of Hon. J. D. Burnett of Oak Grove, Douglas county, were married. Young Lane attended the wedding, and after the wedding drank freely with the other attendants.

He was bound to go, though, and when the emigrant car reached where he was standing, he caught hold of the platform railing, intending to swing himself onto the car, but here is where he miscalculated, and, missing his footing, the momentum of the moving train precipitated him under the fast moving wheels, which passed over both legs, severing them from his body.

The injured young man is a son of ex-Congressman Lafayette Lane, is about twenty years of age and is considered a very bright young man. Yet even his brightness does not save him from teaching a great temperance lesson to the masses.

The Nestucca Road.

Billy Baxter, of the Little Nestucca Toll Road company is in the city for a few days in the interest of his company. In talking with a JOURNAL reporter yesterday, Mr. Baxter said that the road from the Grande Ronde reservation to the Little Nestucca bay was now in excellent condition—it having received many repairs since last year. Already since the road has fallen into its present management, manual labor, alone, to the value of over $2000 has been put on the eleven miles of toll road, and many other improvements have been made.

From the Bunchgrass Belt.

John Devine, the well known cattle king of Eastern Oregon, came down last evening from Harney Valley, and a CAPITAL JOURNAL reporter found him taking life easy in a chair under the shade trees in front of the Chemekete hotel this morning. Mr. Devine says that the past winter was the easiest on stock in Harney Valley and the bunch grass belt around Stien's mountain, that he had ever experienced.

THE SOUTH SALEM SCHOOL.

In What Manner the Young Idea is Being Taught how to Shoot.

The scholars in the South Salem school have a happy lot. The building is old, to be sure, and the furniture not modern; but the rooms are commodious, sufficiently shaded and lighted from three sides. It is surrounded with a pine forest, one block of this being school land, which affords the children a delightful play ground, and supplies fuel for winter use at the slight expense of cutting.

When the newspaper man had been invited to a seat, the two classes first named were called up to recite a lesson in physiology. The heart was the subject of study, and its mode of action in the circulation of blood. The lesson was of the nature of a review, and the questions were answered promptly and intelligently.

Mr. Lane called the attention of his visitor to a valuable physiological chart furnished by the school board. Colored plates show the human figure, its muscles, its nerves, its viscera, its venous and arterial system and its skeleton. The internal functions in their condition and in disease are exhibited, the stomach, liver and kidneys in their natural state, and the appearance they present after a life of intemperance.

Class B, grade 1, was next put through a grammar lesson. Several sentences were written on the blackboard and analyzed by the modern school process of diagraming. This sentence was given the class:

"Analyze that sentence," said the professor to his young grammarians. They looked at their teacher with significance in their regards, but made no motion.

"Why don't you go on with your work?" he inquired.

"These young people," said the professor, (sotto voce to the journalist,) "when called on to exercise their judgment in the affairs of life, will at least have clear perceptions to guide them. They will not be dimmed with mere sound."

A class in mental arithmetic worked out a number of fractional problems with commendable celerity. Here is a specimen:

A fishing rod is 16 feet long; 5/8 of its length lacks 2 feet of being the length of the line. Require the length of the line.

This and similar numerical complications were worked out by the rather complicated formula furnished by the text book and the answer arrived at with unflinching accuracy.

MISS LIZZIE DEARBORN is the only assistant teacher in this school, and she has three classes as follows: B class 3rd grade, and the 4th and 5th grades, which are not subdivided into classes. The average attendance in this room is about 30 scholars.

The fourth grade was called up for a lesson in arithmetic, the examples being in short division. They were written on the blackboard, the process by which the sums were worked being given at full length.

The third grade was next heard in geography, a map of Oregon drawn from memory, on the blackboard, being part of the lesson. The boundaries, mountain chains and river courses were marked and the names of the larger cities given. While this was being done the less advanced scholars sat at their desks and wrote a few definitions in civil government. The collection of taxes and the uses to which the money thus collected can be properly applied, were distinctly stated.

The order in the South Salem school is perfect, and the rapport existing between teacher and scholar is all that could be desired.

Mrs. Gillingham's eight year old son is very low with pneumonia, and fears are entertained that it will not recover.

Mr. J. W. Cusick, who started east Monday as a delegate to the republican national convention at Chicago, was taken ill in Portland, says the Albany Herald, and returned home last evening. His illness is not serious, and he will soon be able to start again on his intended trip east before going to Chicago. It may be, however, that he will remain here until after the state election.

Confirms our Statement. The following letter from Mr. R. Koehler, receiver of the O. & C., confirms what the JOURNAL said in regard to the depot on Monday:

PORTLAND, OR., May 15, 1888. Hon. J. J. Murphy, Mayor of the City of Salem, Ogn.—Dear Sir:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of May 13, by which you advise me in regard to the action on the part of the people of Salem with reference to the re-location of the passenger depot. In view of the information received, I shall now commence work on the old site. Very respectfully yours,

R. KOEHLER, Receiver.

An engineer of the O. & C. R. R. Co. is engaged this afternoon in looking around the site of the depot, taking some observations, and making some notes, looking to the removal of the side track nearer the main line, so that the new depot can be erected on the west of both tracks.

They do Nothing by Halves.

The San Francisco Morning Call of the 8th inst. says: "Mr. Dickens gave the first of his recitations last night at the Congregational church. The front of the organ loft was decorated with the English and American flags and the floral ornamentation was very elaborate. Every seat in the church was filled, and as those present constituted the best society of San Francisco, its elegance goes without saying."

Mr. Dickens, it will be remembered, appears here one week from to-night.

THE CAPITOL ADVENTURE CO.

Attention to what we will Mention!

Know All, by these presents: That the Capitol Adventure Co., neither slumbers nor sleeps, but are awake and up to the times, and know well that owing to the depression of business in the East there will be many failures. Now we want to be ready to capture any bargains that may be offered on account of such failures, and to do this it will be necessary for us to be on hand in New York and Chicago, in person, and be armed with plenty of the commodity commonly called Cash, with which we can boast the people of this country are well supplied, and in order for us to get it, we will from now until the first of August offer such bargains as will induce those having money to divide with us.

You all know that our Manager has been in business here for the last twenty years and always does as he advertises. About August 1st he will start East to buy a large fall stock, and in order to do this we will offer our whole stock of goods consisting of Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, Tobacco, Cigars, Paper, Envelopes, Notions, etc., at a great sacrifice, and in order that the general Public may know that we mean business, we mention the price of some of our goods till August 1st.
